

Artist Statement:

I am a multimedia artist trained in fine arts at the School of Visual Arts in New York. Since I was a young child, I needed to create things to make sense of the world around me. After attending art school, I studied psychology and combined these two passions by becoming an art therapist, using the process of art-making to heal and process trauma. I have worked in multiple media including fiber arts, photography, and ceramics, but have always felt most connected to oil paints.
